AFTERNOON PROGRAM: 2 PM! (MASKS REQUIRED)

REMEMBERING FRANK JENKINS!

Arriving in Seattle as a child in 1909; Jenkins went to work on the waterfront in 1920 after attending Lawton Grammar School and Queen Anne High School.

He became involved in one highly dramatic incident in connection with the fifth trial of ILWU President Bridges in 1953. (This was a civil suit to revoke Bridges' citizenship, instituted after the US Supreme Court earlier voided a criminal conviction on the same charge of perjury in denying Communist Party membership when he secured his citizenship.)

Right after Jenkins finished testifying as a defense witness for Bridges the Coast Guard picked up his pass. The Coast Guard claimed it had been looking for him since 1953—although all those years he worked on the Seattle docks, served on the port labor relations committee, and resided at the same address.

It took four months of effort to get his Coast Guard pass restored.

He was elected a delegate to seven ILWU International conventions. At the 19th convention in 1971, having retired, he was present as a fraternal delegate.
